

Users' Meeting 2006

CAE Technologies in Industry

Exhibition Booking Form

9-10 November 2006
VILLA CAROLI-ZANCHI - STEZZANO (BG)

GENERAL INFORMATION

The EnginSoft Users' Meeting is undoubtedly the most important event of the year for all those working in the field of CAE, virtual prototyping, product/process integration and related sectors. The conference offers an ideal opportunity to present software and hardware products to a highly selected audience in a specially organised parallel exhibition area open to interested companies and organisations.

The event is also unique of its kind in terms of its location and the quality of the auxiliary services offered, features that are typical of events organised by EnginSoft and which make an important contribution to enabling networking and heighten interest in the products exhibited.

BACKGROUND

Innovation is built on knowledge, firstly on a company's core knowledge base but also on the complementary skills needed that have to be gained externally. It is the driving force for creativity and the vital tools are timeliness, astuteness and organisation. The process of ongoing transformation that mirrors innovation can be helped enormously by scientific computing, but only on condition that it is applied in harmony with the process itself and, above all, at the service of the company's core knowledge base.

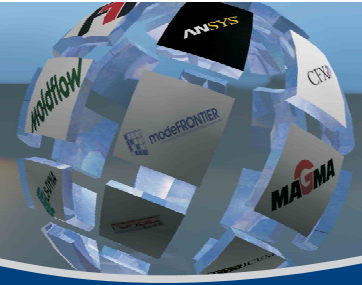

EnginSoft believes it can make a valuable contribution in this area because of its experience of system building and maximising the value of knowledge through the integrated employment of software technologies. The Users' Meeting is the ideal venue at which the debate on these themes takes on particular value because of the opportunity it offers to compare the experiences of the companies for whom EnginSoft is the partner for the innovation of the design process.

The invitation to participate is therefore extended to both experts working in the field and those involved in, or responsible for such processes and in need of an understanding of the world of virtual prototyping or, to use today's wider term, iDP.

As with past conferences a distinguishing feature of the meeting will be collection and dissemination of ideas, trends and information in ways that are both concrete and applicable by all. The various sessions will share a common point of view, namely the objective return on the use of CAE in a company setting: why the innovation of the production process means recognising the impact that the chosen technologies and methods will have on the design process both in terms of productivity and reliability, the present and future validity of the investment, the interactions associated with design and production functions and their compatibility with the company's management systems. All this while respecting the objective of increasing competitiveness. Is CAE an indispensable ingredient? If so, in which cases, and under what conditions?
